

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The present invention is a method of producing semiconductor devices and an etching liquid with which the titanium nitride film can be removed without thinning of the CoSi layer. A hydrogen peroxide-water mixture is used for removal of the titanium nitride film in the method of producing semiconductor devices by cobalt salicide technology with titanium nitride as the cap film.